

Why the cat won't purr anymore

Dr. Ulrike Werner
Difficult Cats
[Sorgenkätzchen]
A vet tells us about her most unusual patients

Penguin Verlag
224 pages
Format 11,8 x 18,7 cm
March 2017

Dr. med. vet. Ulrike Werner has been living and working in and around Berlin for many years. In 2005 she set up the "Mobile Animal Behaviour Practice" in Berlin, and since then has been an important port of call for many vets and animal owners. Ulrike Werner is also one of the names behind the column "Für ALLE Felle" published in the Tagesspiegel in 2015.

What should you do if your beloved cat is always incontinent on Wednesdays or the kitten suddenly turns into the most belligerent of tigers when you are peeling potatoes?

Just call Dr. Ulrike Werner, who will then come along and put an end to the feline blues. With sure instinct the Berlin vet finds out what cats cannot tell their owners. She needs not only needs skills as an animal behavioural therapist but also her expertise on human nature. For very often humans and animals have to learn to understand each other so that the problem kitty becomes a cuddly cat again.