 480 pages
 Format 13,5 x 20,6 cm
 June 2013

As the child of a seafaring family, Torsten Fink, born in 1965, spent the first years of his life on the North Sea. He is now a freelance journalist, literary cabaret artist and author.

Sahif has recovered his memory, and his worst fears have been confirmed. He indeed used to be an assassin, one of his father the Great Scorpion's best killers. But now that he knows this, he is determined to take his fate into his own hands. To do this however, he not only needs to confront his father. More than anything else, he has to stop his sister, who has ruthlessly been using him for her own intrigues – and who, for the sake of her own power, would be prepared to plunge the world into ruin!

For the fans of Brent Weeks and Peter V. Brett.
