After a series of colleagues have committed suicide – each one savagely – detective inspector Sabine Nemez begins to smell a rat. There is a lot pointing to a decades-old conspiracy and a revenge-thirsty victim.

Sabine asks a former colleague for help: profiler Maarten S. Sneijder, now suspended from service. He, however, refuses to cooperate and urgently warns her to keep off the case. Then Sabine goes missing without trace, and Sneijder intervenes. In doing so he not only puts a spoke in the wheel of a hate-filled murderer but also gets in the way of his one-time friends and colleagues, who would do anything to erase the sins of their past for all time ...
