

Death in a gourmet restaurant: A new case for PR genius Mats Holm

Birand Bingül
Risky Recipes
[Riskante Rezepte]
Crime novel

btb Taschenbuch
448 pages
0 b/w illustrations
Format 11,8 x 18,7 cm
January 2020

Birand Bingül, born in 1974, is a writer and editor for WDR broadcasting in Cologne, where his jobs have included company spokesman, television news correspondent and commentator and radio presenter. Risky Recipes is his second crime novel after Risky Manoeuvres and a new case for Mats Holm.

It is Saturday evening in an exclusive restaurant near Hamburg. Family-run. Crammed full. There is the smell of saffron rice, warm elderberries and pine needles in the air. This is where 29-year-old starred chef Bianca Veh and her father conjure up the most wonderful dishes.

But suddenly, a prominent and regular guest starts gasping for breath. And dies. The ultimate disaster! PR genius Mats Holms has the job of rescuing their reputation, plus business deals worth millions involving cookbooks, TV shows and advertising. Could this have been a case of poisoning? And if so, why? The more Holm and his smart lady colleague find out, the deeper are the abysses opening up in the family's gastro imperium.

Press

"This is the stuff of literature of suspense in the here and now." Ulrich Noller on "Risky Manoeuvres"