Aunt Hedwig has had enough. For years she has been looking after her family and seeing to their funeral parlour. Now at last she wants to have some time for herself and sets off for a holiday at a health resort. Yet her nephew, Viktor, desperately needs her help with chasing after an urn thief. And Viktor himself is involved in a highly explosive case: there is a serial killer up to no good, the pretty florist has been murdered and her corpse piously decorated with flowers. There is obviously nothing that can stop Viktor from investigating off their own bat – unaware that the murderer already has his sights on his girlfriend...
