Elli H. Radinger, born in 1951, gave up her law career to devote herself entirely to her true passions: writing and wolves. Her books The Wisdom of Wolves and The Wisdom of Old Dogs are bestsellers and have been translated into numerous languages. This new book draws on her first-hand experiences and observations during years spent in wilderness areas as an independent naturalist.

Wilderness is deeply rooted in us: it challenges us, strengthens us, calms us and opens our hearts - and it gives us new gifts every day.

In this book naturalist and wolf expert Elli H. Radinger tells exciting and enchanting stories which reveal the treasures that wilderness has in store for us: adventure, serenity, amazement, silence, darkness, community, resilience, trust, but also frugality and fear.

She takes us on an inspiring journey into nature and to ourselves and shows how the magic of wilderness can change our lives as well as our minds.
