Christian Kuhn, while still a child, was already sailing his father's boat along the Rhine with the aim of exploring the North Sea and its islands. He loves the rough charm of the sea, mature whisky and unforgettable stories. And just like his own protagonist he has discovered his love of running.

Summer break. The German Federal President is vacationing on Juist. But there is growing evidence of a murder plan.

Detective chief superintendent Tinus Velten is sent from Berlin to the East Frisian island to help the security team there. He also has a second commission, a secret one: there appears to be a spy in the police ranks. Velten has to catch him as soon as possible – otherwise his first mission on the North Sea will end fatally.

The beginning of a gripping crime series on the East Frisian islands.
