Joachim Buse was born in 1957. As a widower, he found the new love of his life through an online platform. He has been friends with his co-author Gundula Göbel for more than 35 years.

Gundula Göbel, born in 1962, is a psychotherapist and couple therapist with her own practice and over 25 years of experience in therapeutic work. She is the author of several books.

Is it possible to find love on the Internet, even if you are not an experienced online user? Even though he had never dealt with online dating before, Joachim Buse at the age of 59 met his new partner on an Internet platform. Here he describes his experiences with all the wonderful and bizarre encounters, and the advantages and pitfalls of this kind of dating.

The psychotherapist Gundula Göbel supplements his stories with background information from a psychological perspective and provides tips as well for self-reflection. Here the authors accompany readers from their first registration on a website, through their first dates – and all the way to their new relationship.

- A fine orientation for searching for love online
