Albert Biesinger, born in 1948, is a professor of religious studies at the University of Tübingen. Much in demand as a speaker both in Germany and abroad, he has written successful spiritual and religious-education books for parents and children.

Helga Kohler-Spiegel, born in 1962, is a professor of religious studies and holds an executive position at the Office for Catechesis and Religious Education in St. Gallen, Switzerland. In addition, she works as a psychotherapist in her own paediatric practice.

Can Jesus be conjured into bread and wine? Why do some football players make the sign of the cross before the match begins? Which ointment does one use at the Anointing of the Sick? Where are dead people? What is the Holy Spirit? Twenty-one well-known theologians respond to these and other tricky faith-related questions in this cleverly illustrated, entertainingly written book, which contains many intelligent explanations for curious children aged 8 and above – and their parents.
