Annette Roeder, born in Munich in 1968, is a writer, illustrator and architect. She has been writing picture books and children's books and novels for adults since 2001. She lives on the outskirts of Munich with her three children.

Katrin Engelking, born in 1970, studied illustration at the University of Design in Hamburg and has been freelancing as an artist since 1994. She is now one of the major and most popular illustrators in Germany and her amusing and charming pictures have put life into many children's stories, including the new edition of Pippi Longstocking.

Rosa is cheerful, cheek and courageous, usually wears dungarees and loves climbing up the tallest trees. What she would like much better than the trousers her three brothers have passed down to her would be a pink frilly dress and a crown – like a princess! But her parents' little farm is not a palace and only the pigs in the stables are pink. What a good thing that Rosa has her donkey, and in reality he is a unicorn, can speak and has lots of good ideas. Sometimes even very good ones ... Will they together manage to make Rosa into a true princess after all?

- Together invincible: Rosa and her donkey Unicorn
- A charming heroine for girls of today
