

A hen looking for luck

Eva Muszynski, Karsten Teich
Trudel Gedudel Takes a Tumble from the Fence
 [Trudel Gedudel purzelt vom Zaun]

cbj
 88 pages
 80 colour illustrations
 Format 17,0 x 24,0 cm
 March 2019
 5+

Eva Muszynski, author and illustrator, was born in Berlin. She has been creating pictures ever since she could hold a pencil and writing stories since her elementary school days. She graduated in visual communication and has published more than twenty children's books. She still lives in Berlin.

Karsten Teich, born in 1967, studied art and has been illustrating children's books for various publishing houses since 2001. His characters and stories have become very popular. He works and lives with his family in Berlin.

Trudel Gedudel is a hen. She lives on a farm and broods over tea and biscuits with her feathered friends. One day, after a quarrel with twin turkeys Finicky and Fussy, Trudel finds herself sitting on the fence again. That's not where nice hens should be, for on the other side of the fence are woods – if not to say the wilderness itself! This throws Trudel so much off balance that she takes a tumble – onto the wrong side! Now she has to come to terms with the big unknown all by herself, and not everyone here means well; some of them even want to get rid of her. But a hen like Trudel Gedudel should never be underestimated ...

- All about the adventure of being brave and venturing onto new ground
- A story full of fun, with word plays and great ideas

Press

"A firework of linguistic plays and puns!" BUCH & MAUS

"Funnily illustrated book that encourages to break out of the usual spheres." Hamburger Morgenpost

"The text is filled with smart punch lines, allusions, and witty puns that speak to children as well as adults." Neue Zürcher Zeitung