

The core message of all Biblical texts – in one volume

73 Overtures
[73 Overtüren]
Book beginnings in the Bible and their message

Gütersloher Verlagshaus
704 pages
Format 15,0 x 22,7 cm
October 2018

Egbert Ballhorn has a PhD in theology and is professor for the Old Testament at the Technical University in Dortmund. He is the vice-president of the Katholisches Bibelwerk e.V.

Georg Steins has a PhD in theology and is professor for the Old Testament at Osnabrück University. He developed the internationally acclaimed programme of a "canonical-intertextual reading of the Bible" and represents a culturological approach to interpreting the Bible.

Regina Wildgruber has a PhD in theology and is a bible scholar and universal church delegate in the diocese of Osnabrück.

Uta Zwingenberger has a PhD in theology and is a

Penguin
Random House
Verlagsgruppe

The beginning of a book can be tricky! If it is good the reader is its prey, for once caught up in the first pages we cannot put the book down. What is true of modern literature also holds true of the books of the Bible: their beginnings have the potential to make the entire scripture accessible.

Fifty notable bible scholars have opened up this potential. Starting off with the beginnings of the books, this volume offers vivid insights into all the 73 books of the Bible. Thus the central themes of the biblical canon are made clear and comprehensible. This is a work that opens the Bible to us, not only as a religious treasure trove but also as a unique part of our cultural heritage.

For more information please visit www.randomhouse.de bible scholar. She is involved in biblical education in the diocese of Osnabrück and head of the Bible Forum in the Haus Ohrbeck, Georgsmarienhütte, diocese representative of the Katholisches Bibelwerk e.V. and organiser of the International Jewish-Christian Bible Week.