

A mosaic of a fascinating nation

Andrea von Treuenfeld
Israel
[Israel]
Moments in the country's biography

Gütersloher Verlagshaus
224 pages
48 b/w illustrations
Format 13,5 x 21,5 cm
March 2018

Andrea von Treuenfeld studied journalism and German literature and spent many years working as a columnist, correspondent and editor for such well-known print media as Welt am Sonntag and Wirtschaftswoche. As a freelance journalist she now writes portraits and biographies. The Gütersloher Verlagshaus published her books In Germany a Jew, A Yekke in Israel and Back to the Country That Wanted to Kill Us.

Israel is a country with which, because of its history, Germany is ineluctably linked and which time and again polarises. This book tells its political and personal history in concise, informative episodes. For each of the seventy "years of its life" of this complicated state, the book focuses both on central and formative events and people and on unusual and less-known individuals and happenings.

This is a comprehensive reading book which is as surprising, amazing and fascinating as the country itself.