Adnan Maral, born in 1968 in Cildir in Turkey, has been living in Germany for 40 years and still does not have a German passport – unlike his three children, who were all born in Germany. Maral is an actor and cultural ambassador in the German-Turkish dialogue.

Pensioner Kenan really doesn't have an easy life. He is at loggerheads with his son Tan; his German daughter-in-law doesn't understand a word of Turkish; and all his grandson Tobias can think of is his crazy Cosplay videos.

But when Kenan unbeknown to anyone picks up a genetically modified virus, the tide turns. For he suddenly develops super powers. Whenever he drinks ayran he can fly through the air, stick to objects and sense when his family is in distress. In his super-hero outfit Kenan turns into a quirky SÜPERGRANDDAD who declares war on the town crooks ...

"The book plays with many clichés, yet Adnan Maral adds a lot of his own experiences. An amusing superhero novel of a different sort." Straubinger Tagblatt
