

He has been murdering for years without being caught, killing is an addiction to him ...

Frederic Hecker
Deathly Pale [Totenblass]
Thriller

Blanvalet TB
608 pages
Format 11,8 x 18,7 cm
March 2020
des Monats plus

Frederic Hecker, born in 1980, studied medicine in Frankfurt. His basic medical training at the Institute of Forensic Medicine was followed by two further qualifications in the field of surgery. He now works as a plastic surgeon and spends his free time writing.

Frankfurt on a cold and damp November evening: There is a female corpse floating in the Main, naked and covered with peculiar wounds. Detective chief superintendent Joachim Fuchs and his new colleague, the young case analyst Lara Schuhmann, are facing a mystery. After the post-mortem they are convinced that they are dealing with a perfidious serial killer.

When during his investigations Fuchs gets to know witness Sophie better he is taken off the case for reasons of conflicting interests. He continues his investigations on his own – thus setting off a fatal chain of events ...

A thriller debut with a medical background featuring investigators Lara Schuhmann and Joachim Fuchs.

Press

"The smooth, dynamic and entertaining writing style pulls readers right into the action. A debut in a class of its own: captivating, suspense filled, fastpaced." Krimi-Couch

"First-class debut and opener of a gripping series that provides fascinating insights into forensic medicine." Mainhattan Kurier