Ivy Andrews alias Viola Plötz, born in 1979, started freelancing as a wedding photographer and designer after studying communication design. In 2014 she finally decided to make her dream of a book of her own come true – a decision that led to several successful self-published novels and now the Blanvalet L.O.V.E. series.

When Val starts her semester abroad at the prestigious Plymouth College of Art, she hopes to finally give her broken heart a well-earned rest. She intends to focus entirely on her new passion – fashion photography – and enjoy life in this new country. She's had enough of men, lies and secrets for a while. But suddenly Parker Gibson appears, who is not only extremely charming and attentive, but also turns out to be her landlord. It doesn't take long before the two of them share more than four walls – but then Val begins to suspect that Parker is keeping something from her...
