Barbara Pacht-Eberhart, born in Vienna, studied flute at a music and art college, and then was certified as a teacher. In 2000 she began working as a clown with the Red-Nosed Clown Doctors, and has been a songwriter for children and choirs. A tragic event in her life brought her to writing: in 2008 her husband and her two children were killed in a car accident. Her two bestsellers Four Minus Three and Why You? testify to the power that writing can awaken even in the midst of an existential life crisis. After her training in poetic and biblio-therapy, the author has been endeavouring to pass on this strength to others.

Personal answers to the large questions about mourning

Integral/Lotos/Ansata
Format 12,5 x 20,0 cm
September 2014

Why did you have to die? Why doesn't the pain stop? Will I ever be happy again? ... The large existential questions of mourning – Barbara Pacht-Eberhart had to pose these to herself and find her own answers to them. When she lost her husband and both of her children in an accident, her life suddenly stood still.

Today, six years later, she is a woman who, because of this extreme experience, is able to pass on her wisdom and impart a healing, compassionate strength. Her new book is a treasure for all in mourning and for those around them. Written from an immeasurable depth of experience, this book can be a source of comfort and new confidence.

- A unique combination of personal experience and professional grieving help
- A bestselling author, addressing all the issues that those in mourning are mostly left to face alone
- Support for all phases of mourning
