

Learning from history: Why we have to defend our liberal values!

Professor Dr. Magnus Brechtken
The Value of History
[Der Wert der Geschichte]
Ten lessons for today

Siedler
304 pages
11 b/w illustrations
Format 13,5 x 21,5 cm
August 2020

Rights sold to:

Korea (Sigongsa), Taiwan (Business Weekly)

Magnus Brechtken, born in 1964, gained his PhD in history at Bonn University and taught in Munich and Nottingham before being appointed to the post of deputy director of the Munich Institute for Contemporary History in 2012. His research is mainly focussed on National Socialism, the history of international relations and the historical influence of political memoirs. 2017 saw the publication of his book Albert Speer: A German Career, which was awarded the North German Broadcasting prize for non-fiction and became a bestseller.

One of the leading historians in Germany and his appeal to prevent historical amnesia: We must keep on fighting anew for the values of freedom!

In the ten examples described in his brilliant tour through history, Magnus Brechtken opens our eyes to how tough the fight for the values of freedom, self-determination and participation was and how greatly they have improved our lives – and why these achievements are now being threatened by nationalist and populists both from the right and the left.

How much freedom and what rights did people have 150 years ago? To what degree could young women living around 1900 determine their own lives? And how are things today?

Press

"One might ask just what is still maintaining this society, which often appears to be drifting apart. This intelligent and readable book will provide answers." Süddeutsche Zeitung

"A successful connection to present-day political events." P.M. History

"Whoever wants to understand the value of history and its significance for the present will be well served by the brilliant historian Brechtken." Nordwest-Zeitung